Message from the President

When my family and I moved to East almost 14 years ago, we came here for the schools.

I knew our children would get a great education here. What I didn't know was how the schools would connect us to our community. First, parents on our street gathered to watch our kids play. Soon we were discussing how all of them would walk to Lakeside together. The next thing we knew we were waiting at the front door for kindergarteners to be dismissed, working together at holiday parties, sitting together at the kids' activities and sports, coaching together, serving on PTO committees, volunteering at events, selling Christmas trees, and posing for homecoming pictures. Before we knew it, we were serving food together at the Senior all-night party.

We came here for the fantastic schools, but those schools also provided a fantastic community.

I bring this up because the Foundation continues to evolve into an institution that fosters that sense of community by connecting us to each other and our schools. We connect East alumni from around the country by sharing their stories on our updated website and coordinating their reunions. We host an annual event that raises funds for our schools but also brings us together as a community. We host a bi-annual dinner that recognizes our distinguished alumni and community service volunteers, celebrating the accomplishments and service that members of our community have provided.

The Foundation is also becoming a hub of information about our schools and community. Our weekly Cheat Sheet connects us by providing up-to-date information about what's happening in our schools and our city. Our Facebook page shares news about alumni and students while our website pulls all this information together in one spot.

Of course, the Foundation's greatest contribution to our sense of community is supporting our schools. We are all connected by the desire for our children to receive an outstanding education. For 35 years, the Foundation has provided students and teachers funds to take education one step further with innovative programs, teacher education, and technology. Six years ago, when school funding from the state was no longer sufficient, the Foundation pulled our community together with the EGRNow! campaign, allowing our schools to preserve key programs and maintain an excellent level of education. The program support has been critical, thus allowing the district to maintain vital programs and supports in our schools.

I encourage you to look upon the Foundation as another connection point to our schools and our city. I hope you'll take advantage of the information we provide, join us for an event, volunteer or contribute to our cause. We want to help connect you to our fantastic schools and our extraordinary community.

Michael Reid, President

The EGR Schools Foundation is proud to provide funds for Kabookie Week, a week of remembering Jimmy Gerken and promoting kindness at the high school. Pictured are two of the eight recipients, Chris Boylen and Lily Kate Rogers, who were voted by classmates as exemplifying the characteristics of Jimmy Gerken, including friendship and compassion for all.

THE DONOR ROLL CALL

The East Grand Rapids Schools Foundation's Donor Roll Call recognizes those individuals, businesses and organizations that have supported the Foundation from January 1, 2017 through December 31, 2017. The Foundation's Board of Directors gratefully acknowledges all who have generously supported our mission through their gifts. We also thank individuals who have secured matching gifts from their employers, as well as the employers who have supported their employees' generosity through matching gifts.

This list reflects all outright gifts and does not include participants in Foundation-sponsored events such as HURRAH! or golf outings.

Class of '77 Makes Extraordinary Reunion Gift

After their 40th reunion last fall, members of the Class of '77 decided they wanted to do something special for East Grand Rapids. At the Foundation Board Meeting in December, they did just that, presenting a check to the Foundation for $7,700.

"We are so fortunate to have a Foundation that's committed to the school system and community," said Johnny Liu, one of the class members who presented the check.

"EGR and its school system were a gift growing up," says Lynne Boyles Marino '77. "You often don't realize what you have until you move away. It's a pleasure to give back to a place that has been the springboard for my life. EGR was my 'Foundation.' Community is what we are all about and EGR is our community. The East Grand Rapids Schools Foundation helps keep our community strong and vital. With our gift, we hope to continue that legacy."

The donation was made up of individual contributions and money that was left in the reunion fund. "Schools today are faced with shrinking budgets and EGR is no exception," said another classmate, Diane Schroeder. "Our reunion not only provided a great opportunity to reconnect as a class, but gave us the chance to give back and help students and staff enjoy many of the extras that were readily available to us during our time there. It's truly humbling to be able to do that."

And Cecilia Cunningham summed up the motivation for the Class of '77's donation: "The bonds of friendship formed while at EGR have lasted a lifetime. The educational experiences were some of the finest. The faculty were some of the top teachers in the state. The community is unparalleled in its support of our schools. Now, we are in a position to assist the next generation. It is our pleasure! Go Pioneers!"

L. Neesley Legacy Society Recognizes the Lasting Power of Planned Giving

Every donation to support education is an investment in the future. Funding school programs gives students of today and tomorrow every opportunity to succeed.

A donation made through planned giving takes that investment in the future one step further. Planned giving to the East Grand Rapids Schools Foundation is an investment in education for generations to come.

“A planned gift to the Foundation shows unconditional support for our schools and our community,” says Foundation Executive Director Amy Stuursma. “We live in a community that is built around our schools and educational excellence. A planned gift is a way of memorializing that commitment to our community.”

When individuals name the East Grand Rapids Schools Foundation in their estate plans, they become part of the L. Neesley Legacy Society and continue to benefit East Grand Rapids Schools even after their lifetime.

Louise Hitt Neesley didn't have any children. She and her husband, Nate, were longtime residents of East Grand Rapids. She was on the boards of several local organizations. She loved to work in her garden. And Louise loved to walk from her house up to Gaslight and over to the public library, a path that would have taken her right past East Grand Rapids High School.

Something she saw or heard or experienced on those walks past the high school must have made quite an impression on Louise. When she passed away in 2006, at age 91, Louise donated a portion of her estate to the East Grand Rapids Schools Foundation.

“As a member of the East Grand Rapids community, Louise recognized the importance of education and understood the value of our schools and the impact the Foundation can have on our public schools,” Stuursma says. “By making the Foundation part of her estate plan, Louise demonstrated her understanding of how important our schools are to our community.”

If you have any questions about the L. Neesley Legacy Society, or any aspect of planned giving, please contact the Foundation. We'd be happy to talk to you about making a lasting investment in our community and our children's future.

A special thank you to Kim Bardeggia, Kim Bolt, Bethany Bregenzer, Tanya Craig, Doreen Lambert, Mari Persons and Amy Rockwell for their volunteer hours in the Foundation office.

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT

A VIRTUAL CUP OF COFFEE WITH BILL SPINDLE, '81

Bill Spindle, '81 is the Wall Street Journal's senior writer for global energy issues. Previously, he was the Middle East Bureau Chief for the Journal and has covered the financial industry in Japan and on Wall Street.

What was your path from East Grand Rapids to where you are now in life?

Circuitous, although looking back I suppose there's a logic that wasn't so clear as it was all happening. After working at the student paper at the University of Michigan, I careened through various freelance and full time jobs in journalism: a few months at the Grand Rapids

Press, the Ann Arbor News and then — after a year at Columbia University's graduate journalism school in New York — Newsday on Long Island.

In 1992 I moved to Japan with my wife, who needed to do her field research for a PhD in Japanese art history. I worked at Business-Week magazine and Bloomberg News in Tokyo before landing at The Wall Street Journal. Eventually I moved to the Journal's main office in New York — which directly across the street from the World Trade Center — to become assistant foreign editor. That was early in 2001. With our toddler and newborn, we got an apartment two blocks from the office, on opposite side of the Towers. Six months later, the 9-11 attacks completely destroyed the Journal's offices, though miraculously no one at the paper was killed or injured. I got out of our offices before the worst of it. My family and I then made a relatively harrowing escape from lower Manhattan.

But the attacks thrust me into more than a decade of editing and reporting about the Middle East. We were based in Rome for several years, then Abu Dhabi in the United Arab Emirates. I was in Iraq for parts of the U.S. occupation and its aftermath, and in Syria both before and after it collapsed into civil war. I've made almost a dozen reporting trips to Iran, as well as Israel and nearly every other country in the Middle East. Along this journey I've written about everything from the Japanese automobile industry, Arabic-language TV shows, Iran's youth music culture, the collapse of global financial markets, ISIS, OPEC and the global cashew nut industry. I currently live and work in India, based in New Delhi.

What specific thing did you learn in East that has enabled you to be successful?

I think I learned to appreciate the value of learning — of learning how to learn. That's been my bread and butter as a journalist, quickly making sense of and then explaining so many different things while retaining a healthy appreciation of just how much you don't know and understand.

What were you like in school?

Curious and confident enough to get myself into classes where I usually then was awed by how smart the other students were. I managed, but often with considerable struggle.

Did you have a favorite teacher or class?

Bert Froyland instilled a love of language and appreciation for the discipline that went into the best writing. I was dazzled by the intelligence of teachers in the science department and came away with a lifelong fascination with physics and have even put some vaguely recalled knowledge of chemistry to work while writing about the energy industry, my struggles in those classes notwithstanding.

What advice do you have for young East alums who are just starting out?

Don't dismiss simply doing something that's fun and interesting. Amazing where that can take you....
